Local and General

The Havens Bros. are the latest to purchase a Ford car.

Mr. and Mrs. Hammond, of Calgary, were visitors with Mrs. F. Ingham on Sunday.

J. H. O'Neil unloaded a car of lumber last week, with which to build a new house and barns.

T. Vandelin and family, of Calgary, are holidaying at his ranch to the west of Crossfield.

Mrs. A. Young and children, of Macleod are visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Macleod.

Mrs. M. A. McKay, who has been visiting at Drumheller for the past two weeks returned home on Thursday.

Get your game license ready for the opening of the duck season next Tuesday.

Kenneth Neil who formerly worked at the C.P.R. Station here visited town on Thursday in company with his grandfather, Mr. Muir of Montreal. Mr. Neil is located in Airdrie.

Public School opened on Monday last with an enrolment of 65. This will undoubtedly be somewhat increased after the busy season is passed.

A movement is on foot to establish another room at the school and take up High School work. This is a step in the right direction and it is to be hoped that the School Board will be able to accomplish their aim.

C. Wicks, C. J. Urquhart, G. Weir and S. Kemp were visitors to Calgary on Sunday, going down by auto. They had to return by the midnight train.

Bert Woledge is busy in his spare time building a barn and fencing their vacant lots.

Harvesting is getting well in hand around Crossfield and the general report seems to be a fair average crop.

There is more sickness around than usual. Is it the weather or what, that is accountable for it.

V. Fisher had the misfortune to give his ankle a rather nasty twist a few days ago, we hope to see him walking round as nimble as ever in a short time.

On Sunday, 16th inst., a most interesting and exciting chase took place out at the Beaver Dam district, when Mr. Shirley Matthews' fine wolf-hounds ran down a full grown coyote dog, after a run lasting over 30 minutes.

It has been announced in Ottawa that His Majesty the King has graciously consented to become patron of the Canadian patriotic fund.

If you want to make it easier for your wife on washing day buy a "Maytag" Power Washer and Wringer for her and connect it to the gasoline engine. Laut's sell them.

If you want to Sell your Land, List it with me at once. I Have numerous enquiries.

If you require to renew your old Loan or take out a new one, call and see me, as I can save you money. I represent The Canada Life, and others.

CROSSFIELD LOCAL & GENERAL.

Mrs. Halliday and family returned from Edmonton, where they had been visiting, on Friday night.

Mrs. Havens and two daughters left Crossfield for Red Deer, where the girls will resume their education.

Last Sunday afternoon about 20 of the young people of the district gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Bolick. Mrs. Bolick gave several piano forte selections, and nearly all joined in singing songs.

After a nice lunch on the lawn, a very pleasant evening was spent.

The crowd departing about 10 p.m. Our new Village Shoemaker W. Stock, has been in the old country, like many of his craft, a man of many parts. He was for a number of years Secretary of the Northampton and District Boot and Shoe Trade Managers' and Foremen's Association, for a number of years a local preacher, Sunday School teacher, etc., etc., an old member of the I.O.O.F., Man. Unity. Let us hope he may be kept busy healing the soles of men and women for years to come.

DON'T WORRY!

"Don't worry," was the receipt for long life recently given by an aged physician who had preserved his youth.

"Good advice but impractical," you say. But did you ever give it a real trial? A person can't stop worrying merely by saying, "Go to, now; I am not going to worry any more."

The more he thinks about stopping the more impossible it is to stop.

There is a way, though. Don't consciously try to stop worrying, but get interested in something else.

If you have something to worry about and give yourself the opportunity you will do a lot of worrying. But if you keep busy you won't give worry a chance.

When a great sorrow comes a person may simply abandon himself to it by letting his other interests lag. But by looking about for something to absorb his attention he can put himself in a wholesome frame of mind.

Worry can be fought the same way.

WHEN TIED TOGETHER.

An Irish couple, whose married bliss was not without a few squalls, received a homely lecture from their spiritual adviser regarding their disgraceful quarrels.

His Reverence:—That dog and cat you have agree better than you.

The reply:—somewhat upset him.

If ye riverens tider them together ye'd soon change yer moind.

If you have $100 to invest in Land, I can sell you a Quarter Section, 5 miles from here. Well improved. Only interest payable the first five years at 6 per cent., principal payable the 6th, 7th, 8th and 9th years.

Yours for immediate sale.

GEORGE HUSER.

Baby Cupid.

A Crisis Which Was Successfully Passed by His Aid.

By LITTELL MCCLUNG.

Mrs. Kenton repudiated his seriousness with a flirtatious laugh.

"Let's see. Why, you know me only a month, so you pretty widow effect. You're never even seen the rest of the family."

"You mean Henry?" he said.

"Of course I mean Henry," she exclaimed. "Who else could I mean? The very idea of your starting to propose to me, Mr. Burton, without ever having seen Henry. The man who loves me must love him too. He must think that Henry is the handsomest, sweet little fellow in the world."

"Oh, you don't realize what such a baby as Henry means to a young man like Mr. Burton, his hope, his life. Mr. Burton, the man she loves must share her feelings about her child. You understand, don't you?"

The man nodded.

"But how am I to share your love for the child—how can I ever meet him—if you don't give me the chance?" he demanded. "I call the evening, and the nurse is just putting him to bed. I stop by in the afternoon, and you and Henry have gone out for a ride."

"Something always happens to keep Henry out of my sight. I've about come to believe that he is a myth, a prattling phantom that willfully eludes me."

"How can you, Mr. Burton, use the word 'prattling' when speaking of Henry?" she demanded, trying to keep a serious face. "The little dear doesn't practice it!"

"Indeed?" he exclaimed. "I hardly thought he was old enough to—"

"Certainly, he's old enough," she interrupted. "He is an 'infant' just beautifully, and at present I'm concentrating all my energies on getting him to say 'dear mamma' and 'nurse' and other necessary words."

The light of inspiration dashed over James Burton's face.

"Why don't you teach him my name?" he asked eagerly. "It's very easy—just Jim, I know. Then when Henry and I get acquainted we'll start on ten years of friendship without any preliminaries."

"Oh, what an idea!" she cooed. "Why, of course Henry shall be taught to say 'Jim'."

Barton noticed with a thrill the blush that tinged her cheek even as her tongue faltered.

"Well, when shall I see him?" he asked. "Let me make an engagement with you and Henry."

"Fine and dandy!" declared Barton as he lifted his hand in farewell. "If I do as bad, Mrs. Kenton, you may be ours."

On the eventful afternoon Barton came as he had said, a smile of confidence lighting his face—a smile that faded as quickly as the blush of a delicate girl.

Mrs. Kenton greeted him with a warm hand clasp, and the next moment he found himself in a drawing room filled with young women. He was the only man in sight, and he knew that as the rapid fire introductions began.

But he faced, like a hero, the chorus of "Oh!" "Delighted!" and "How charming!" and came through with face unflustered.

He was bold, and the meeting gave promise of passes of pleasure enough. But the blow fell when the president, a middle aged woman with a twinkle of humor in her eye, arose from the first formal announcement.

"Mrs. Kenton is one who has brought our children with us—the proper thing for young mothers to do. These children, as you are aware, are upstairs in care of two of our most loyal mothers."

"Each of us has listened with particular interest to what you have to say," said Mrs. Kenton, "but now we are prepared to learn the truth. There is a gleam in our midst. He shall see the children and make formal report to us as to which is the prettiest!"

James Burton went right down into his patient mother as he turned upon Mrs. Kenton with a look of unforgiving reproach.

"Really, I didn't do it!" she whined. "It's one of the surprises the club always springs on the hostess—your mother."

There was no doubt the sincerity of her tone, and Barton summing to his aid every fiber of his courage, stood to protest. The quick eyed president divined his intention, and she gave him no chance to utter a word.

"My young friend, I wish to protest that he is not a good judge of children," she declared, "but we all feel sure that he is a man of judgment and courage and that he will do what we ask of him."

A dozen smirks were suppressed as Burton's eyes glared, for the humor of the situation had not escaped to him.

"I shall not profit," he said with quiet determination. "On the contrary, I shall be very glad to pick up the tab for you. And, furthermore, I am prepared to face the consequences, whatever they may be!"

The president smiled and appointed a committee to escort Burton to the nursery. Soon he was the center of six discontented infants who were toddling about over the floor in a state of two-dimensional confusion.

The impromptu nurses were sworn to secrecy, and Burton was given a long blue ribbon to tie on the arm of the baby he thought the prettiest. The nurse left him with the infant, the red ribbon full of life, and it all might be a huge joke with the mothers, for it was about the most serious moment of his life.

The second column mentions some of the ancient Babylonian cities of Babylon, Nineveh, and the like, or perhaps the religious man had a shire of bards with whom he was of being regarded as heterodox, said Mr. T. G. Finch, in an address in London recently on the latest discovery in that field.

Further information concerning these legends, as also of those concerning the Flood, have reached us in a strict sense, real Russia covering a portion of the land more than 200,000 square miles that lie within the borders of the continent. This narrower definition would certainly eliminate Finland, Poland, the Baltic provinces, Bessarabia, and the Caucasus and probably a part of the land of Scythia, sections bordering on the Arctic ocean and the lower Volga. In other words, real Russia has developed within this narrower section, and whatever of Scythian characteristics appear in the steppes, they are imposed by the conqueror upon a people born by birth and language.

"The actual visible influence of Tolstoy on Russia seems not to have been great. He was beloved and reveren-ted, but he was not claimed as a leader or has ever claimed him as a leader. The higher classes rejected him because of his opposition to all established government; the peasantry were repelled by his distribution against religion; the revolutionaries and anarchists repudiated his teaching and his definite plan to overthrow the government. His influence on thought and opinion in Russia will not compare with his influence in non-

Russian nations."

BABYLONIAN LEGEND.

New Found Tablets Enlarge Archaeologist's Field of Knowledge.

The Babylonians were rich in accounts of the first beginnings of man, and the religious man had a shire of bards with whom he was of being regarded as heterodox, said Mr. T. G. Finch, in an address in London recently on the latest discovery in that field.

One of these documents, inscribed in three columns on each side, has, in the first column, instructions concerning the division of cities, which are described as "the gods to the first men." "We are given the gods to the first men," wrote the author of the new text at Niffer (the Calneh of Ge-

THE REAL RUSSIA.

It is Confined to a Very Small Section of the Vast Empire.

In "The Russian Empire, Today and Yesterday," Nevin O. Winter says:

"In a strict sense, real Russia covers a very small portion of the land of the empire, less than 200,000 square miles, that lie within the borders of the continent. Repairing Fractured Hearts by Dozen Thirty-one patients in a Russian hospital have recovered from stab wounds of the heart!

Dr. Zhdan says the patients were put under the influence of ether very soon after the injury, part of the chest wall was removed, the heart literally freed its bed and the muscles introduced between pulsations.
The bony chest wall over the heart was held back in place, that organ being held covered by the skin muscle. This was done to give the heart room to expand and to prevent admissions from embarrassing the patient's action. Several of the patients have resumed their usual employment.

The probable reason for the success of the experiment was prompt and rapid operation.

Burning Water
Dry coal does not produce as much heat as coal that is considerably damp. It is, of course, a fact that a great deal of heat is produced by water and it is essential to know how to secure the most from ordinary fuel.

Coal that is to be burned in a furnace,
a stove or a grate for immediate heat will produce nearly one fourth more heat when wet than when dry. Coal is to be placed in the stove or furnace to burn up so as to produce a long continued, moderate heat will produce a little more heat than when dry. There is a point of moisture at which can be secured if the coal is real dry.

Large lumps of coal can be soaked in a tub of water for half an hour and the heat will increase forty one-half. This is done in cases where the lumps are used in stoves tightly closed furnaces.

Several pails of water thrown over a ton of coal will increase its value greatly to the burning. Coal when it is bright in water and almost air less miles, and it is said the heat is intense. When there is a fire and the coal will burn it is difficult to keep the fire with water.

We might as well secure a little of the heat stored in burning water as to permit it to go unused.—Philadelphian North American.

The Sun Locust

At the distance of the earth from the sun, the heat from the sun is greatly weakened by the sun as is greater in amount as would be produced by the burning of sixty-six globes of the best anthracite coal, each heavy as a man or five thousand pounds, and equal in weight to the moon. But the greater part of this energy is, as far as we can see, expended upon the sun's body itself. If a planetary body is interposed in the path of the rays, there is nothing for them to act upon. Only about two millionths of the sun's energy is intercepted by the earth and only about one two-hundred-and-twenty-five-millionth by all the planets to gether. The sun is a gigantic spendthrift, but if he did not radiate in every direction, he would not be so far from space;

he would not be a star among stars, and who can say that what he expends to make himself known and
to maintain this rank in the universe,
is not a wise economy? He who thinks that he flings to his planets—Garrett
P. Serviss in Spokane Review.

How to Win

This is an age of specialization, my boy, and the men who succeed in it are those who will stick to some particular line of work and live with it until they get to know more about it than most other fellows. Concentrate your efforts in one direction;
you may not be a star among
stars, and who can say that what he expends to make himself known and
to maintain this rank in the universe,
is not a wise economy? He who
thinks that he flings to his planets—Garrett
P. Serviss in Spokane Review.

Fighting Spirit of Britain Roused by News of Reverses.

Must Conquer the Forces of the Kaiser of Die! Editorial Opinions of Leading Newspapers is that the British Nation will Stick to its Work with Tenacity.

London, Aug. 25.—In the bright morning sunshine the troops marched along the streets to-day. The band playing "It's a long way to Tipperary."

"We don't care," shouted the crowds along the side-walks, and cheered at the soldiers' laughing response. Cheers came from the sort of people who have hitherto been content to watch the passing of troops with interest, but without and demonstration. In the words of the song "It's a long way to go," but all the newspapers express confidence that despite the initial reverses the British nation will stick to its work with bulldog tenacity.

The Evening News says:

"Not only are we not beaten, but we do not intend to be beaten. We are going on till we win, but we need men and we need them now."

The Pall Mall Gazette says:

Must Be Fought to Finish.

"This thing will be fought clean through to a finish, and the end will only come when victory has crowned the standards of right and freedom."

The Westminster Gazette says:

"Germany on this occasion is engaged not only with France, but also Great Britain and Russia—les deux intangibles, as they have been called, and as they have proved to be the wars of history. With France steady and these two nations all the time exerting their pressure from the outer rims, the French government has good ground for expressing its absolute confidence in ultimate victory. We have now our part to play, and we are true to our reported tenacity, we shall play it with decisive effect, whatever happens at the moment in the eastern field of war."

The Evening Standard says:

Must Not Rely On Russia.

"There should not be too much reliance on the Russian advance. Granting that it is a terrible factor for Germany to reckon with, it does not for our moment relieve us of the vital necessity of driving the Germans from Belgium. No Russian success, tremendous as might be its material bearing on the situation, could compensate France and Britain for failure in their own part. For us the theatre of the war is Belgium and the French frontier. There we must conquer or die."

Major R. L. Boyle
Leaves for the Front.

Possibly the war was brought closer to the people of Crossfield on Wednesday noon, when they assembled at the C.P.R. Depot to bid farewell to our gallant Major, than at any time since the opening of hostilities. The Major will, in all probability, leave Calgary to-day in charge of a troop train for Valcartier, and upon his arrival there his future movements will be governed by orders from the Department of Militia. The Major will be much missed both in town and district as he always took a very active part in public life.

Extracts from a Letter from England.

We think a few extracts from a letter to one of the family just received, may throw a little light on conditions in England at the present time:

"August 10th, 1914,

Bolton, Lancs, Eng.
Dear ——, I am sorry to tell you that things are very bad here at present, and will be for some time to come since we were despatched all the works are closing down, food of all kinds is going up."

"... has been called up to go with the Ambulance Corps to the Royal Victoria Hospital, Netley, they want all ambulance men to go out. It is just like a garage town. They are making use of half the Board Schools and those for barracks, the town is full of soldiers. Young men are volunteering in hundreds. Men are going about taking all the best horses they can find anywhere, taking them from farmers, doctors, gentlemen, 40 from the Co-op, 80 from Nall and Co., brewers' motor wagons and their horses. They have stopped doing business in the street and take the horses out of the shafts, even wagons loaded with goods have had the horses taken out and left in the street. Some of the farmers have brought their milk to town with old horses, but the men went to their farms and got the good ones. They have got about 800 of the best horses from here."

Paris Hastily Prepares for Siege.

Paris, Aug. 27.—Preparations for the siege of Paris are being rushed, to-day. General Gallieni, an expert in defensive operations, has taken command of the troops that garrison the forts about the capital. He has succeeded Gen. Michel as military governor of Paris. The latter will go to the front.

These steps are officially stated to be "only necessary precautions in conjunction with the military operations," but this announcement is not sufficient to calm the fears aroused by the sudden formation of the new cabinet. It is expected that within 24 hours passenger train service virtually will be suspended by the flood of freight traffic bringing to the capital supplies to stock the government storehouses. Freight trains already are being made up at towns in the centres of agricultural districts.

"In the north the Franco-British lines have been moved back a short distance. In a general way our offensive between Nancy and Vosges makes headway. Our right, however, has been obliged to fall back slightly in the region of St. Die."

"In the north resistance continues. The enemy appear to have considerable loss, more than 1,500 bodies having been found in a very small space in a trench. The entire section had been mowed down by our shells and some had been struck as they stood in the attitude of firing their rifles."

"A series of fiercely contested combats have been going on during the past two days over the whole front, which has been to our advantage. There has been a strong advantage in the Waiver district, where the opposing forces seemed to be recovering after the battle of the past few days. A decree will be published, authorizing special promotions of officers, for the period of the war, regardless of seniority."
